From the Pastor

This season into which we have just embarked is meant to be filled with "Happy Thanksgiving" and "Merry Christmas" greetings. But for many, there is not much "happy" or "merry" to be found. If you have recently lost a loved one, received a frightening medical diagnosis, or are facing festivities separated by too many miles from those dearest to you, these days seem anything but jolly or bright.

Our congregation has experienced a great deal of loss in the past few months. Many among us are facing empty chairs at the family table. For those who have not felt the loss directly, we long to offer comfort and support to those who have. But so often we feel words fail us.

I am grateful that many more people are addressing these complicated emotions and offering helpful wisdom these days. A social worker and grief counselor friend of mine from Little Rock, Greg Adams, recently wrote about

Christmas on Main Street

On Saturday, December 2, join our Tucker neighbors to ring in the season at Christmas on Main. Volunteer to help children decorate Christmas ornaments at our booth on Main Street, and welcome their families to participate in SAPC's Advent activities. Come share the Good News of Christmas and the welcoming fellowship at St. Andrews with our community.

Volunteers are needed from 4-6:15 PM and 6:15-8:30 PM. Sign up to help at this link, or click here contact Paige Kubik 404-895-4210.

how to face the holidays while grieving. He writes:

No time of year has more expectations and shoulds, both within and without, than holiday seasons. We get messages all around about how they are supposed to go. The foods to prepare and eat. Decorations that are required. Smiling family gatherings. Holidays which were intended to be meaningful times of remembrance and celebration can become gauntlets of expectations and activities.

Holidays don't have to be that way. They can be times where we pick and choose what is meaningful and worth doing. Where we look those voices of expectation in the eye and politely say, "No thank you, not this year. I only have so much time and so much energy, and I am guarding both like a soldier."

...The wisdom of grief can help us say "no" when it's not worth it, to say "yes" when it is, and to sort out the differences. There is a freedom to be found in grief, and it is one holiday (and life) invitation that deserves a "yes" in response.

Our calendars at church and in the rest of our lives fill up quickly this time of year. Most of those activities and events are meant to be fun and life-giving. But they aren't always. When you are already feeling the weight of loss the full calendar can feel even more like a burden. It is my hope that this year each of you will be able to navigate this holiday season by seeking out things that give you life. In this season, as the nights grow longer and the darkness lingers, we also want to offer our community a different kind of opportunity—a longest night worship service. On Wednesday, December 13th at 6:30pm in the sanctuary, we will hold this service of worship that will create a safe and sacred space for those who are struggling to feel the joy and light of the holiday season due to loss of any kind. Through visual art, poetry, prayer, song, and candle-lighting, as we approach the longest night of the year, we will pause from the hustle and bustle of the season to honor those who struggle and to witness to the light that shines in the darkness.

While you may need to say "no" to many opportunities in the weeks ahead, I hope you will find times when you can say "yes" to things that help center you this season and connect you to others and to the light that has come and is coming into this world.

Peace,

Camille

Turquoise Table movement by its creator, Kristin Schell.

When Kristin moved to a new neighborhood in Austin, Texas, she longed to connect with her neighbors in a meaningful way, but did not know how. Then she thought back to the summer she spent in France. She remembered long, leisurely meals and great conversations; and, she craved that slower, authentic time to connect with people, that she experienced around the table in France. Thus, the idea of a picnic table in her front yard was born. She painted it turquoise, her favorite color. Then she sat out there to see what would happen. Kristin writes:

I struggle with the concept of 'being' versus 'doing'. My default mode is to 'do' - host fun parties, etc. Our society equates busyness with success. Slowing down to notice that a stranger who jogs by is suddenly missing seems like a colossal waste of time. In those insignificant moments sitting at the table, noticing and observing, I was learning about my neighborhood.

Soon the Turquoise Table idea caught on and has spread around the country. The adherents call themselves "Front Yard People." Check out this book for more information and come sit at our turquoise table any time.
